

HUMANS OF MARCEL CALLO

Vincent MAISONNEUVE, directeur

“[...] We are nothing without our work”

“I started my career with a university degree and 1 year of training to become a teacher and then assistant director. Now, I’m headmaster of the high school for over 15 years.

To do this, I had to accept social and personal constraints because, in order to promote the high school and find and maintain our alliances with companies, I am very often on the move.

ut this job is above all a vocation; I do what I like, that is to say to be in touch, with young people, but also companies ...

And then, I’ve lived some high points like the creation of the aeronautical pathway; and I can note the evolution of this establishment.

But ... all isn’t perfect, I had some regrets on certain decisions and I have made, sometimes, for example to dismiss students with regrets.

My establishment needs improvements too; but we are nothing without work!”
